

Preview Of The Four Tuned Mercedes-Benz GLK Models Set To Debut At The SEMA Show

Were only a few short days away from SEMA, and Mercedes-Benz USA apparently cant contain their excitement. First they showed us renderings of four custom GLK variants that will debuting their next month, and now, as SEMA draws ever closer, MBUSA has released actual photos of each of the models as well. Its certainly a diverse collection especially Boulevard Customs "Urban Whip" pictured above. Oddly enough, the first image that came to mind when I witnessed the Urban Whip was the Power Wheels Barbie Cadillac Escalade, which is strange considering Ive never seen nor heard of a Power Wheels Barbie Cadillac Escalade. I just figured if there was one, this is probably what it would look like. For curiositys sake, I then went to the Toys "R" Us website, and lo-and-behold, this is what I found. Apparently, the "Urban" Boulevard Customs is referring to in "Urban Whip" is in reference to the raw urbanity of Malibu, because if you ever attempted to drive this vehicle in a real city, youd unquestionably be shot, just so whoever shot you could tell their friends how they shot some dude driving a Power Wheels Barbie Cadillac Escalade.

^

Read more