

Mercedes-Benz At The Geneva Motor Show: The New Mercedes E-Class Coupe

{mosgoogle right}Today the Geneva Motor Show officially opened its doors to the press, and with it, the introduction of several new models from Mercedes-Benz. As is the case anytime a new model from Mercedes is introduced, the company has published a wealth of information detailing the models, much of which we've already brought you, and some of which we haven't. In an effort to get this information out as quickly as possible, I'm going to abstain from commenting, instead opting to publish the straight press material. Regular programming will commence, however, following the wrap up of our Geneva Motor Show coverage.

Kicking things off, a second look at the brand-new Mercedes-Benz E-Class Coupe (formerly the Mercedes CLK-Class), accompanied by a gargantuan photo gallery of the model.
